Portofino

PORTOFINO, LIGURIA

Ligurian fishing village · Pastel harbor houses · A wooded green headland · A fishing port turned resort

Once a humble fishing village, Portofino curls around a tiny, near-perfect harbor on the Italian Riviera, its tall houses painted in warm ochre, coral, and cream and mirrored in the sheltered water. Fishing boats and yachts alike now bob at its quay, ringed by a green wooded headland with a small church above. It is one of the most photographed little harbors in the world.

As you color: Let the tall pastel houses curve around the harbor and shimmer in reflection — the mirrored water doubles all your color.
