

PLATE 19

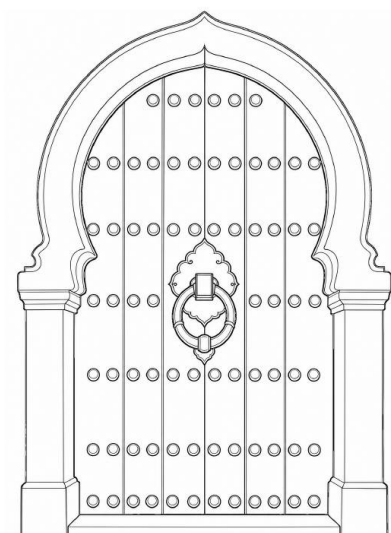

The Blue City

CHEFCHAOUEN, MOROCCO

Founded 1471 · Rif Mountains · Walls washed in blue · Old-town medina

Tucked into the Rif Mountains of northern Morocco, the old town of Chefchaouen is famous for one thing: its buildings, walls, and stairways are washed in every shade of blue, from pale sky to deep indigo. The custom's origins are debated — tradition, cool shade, or simply beauty — but the effect is a town that seems dipped in the sea. Green mountains rise behind the blue.

As you color: This is a study in blues — layer pale powder-blue against deep indigo, and let the doorways and steps carry the richest tones.

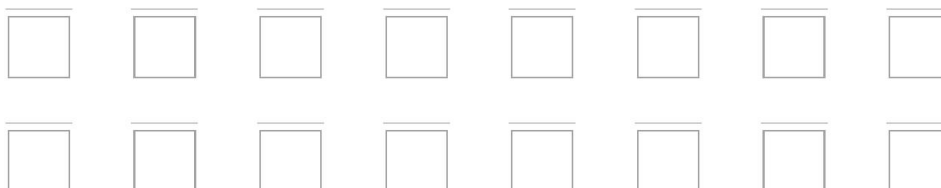

YOUR NOTES

Started _____ Finished _____ Media _____

PALETTE

write the pencil or marker number above each square

One of thirty-eight plates in World Landmarks · Landmark Lines, Book One. See the series at linesofsteele.com

Free for personal use. Please do not sell or redistribute.

© 2026 Eric Steele · linesofsteele.com

